In the aftermath of a hurricane, you and your business will likely have to deal with water damage, persistent flooding and damaged utilities. And, even if you aren't directly impacted by a hurricane, any disruptions to your employees, third-party vendors or customers can still have a severe impact. While your priority should be to ensure the safety of your employees and other stakeholders, these recovery steps can keep your business safe after a hurricane passes:

RECOVERY STEPS
Contact your insurance provider(s) to start the claims process.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Assess damage: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Make note of any structural damage to building(s). • Note any damage to equipment, machinery or company vehicles. • Note any lost or damaged inventory (both materials for business use and products for sale). 	<input type="checkbox"/>
As they come to your attention, compile a list of concerns that must be addressed before you are able to reopen.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Contact employees, suppliers and customers to inform them of any disruptions in operation and an anticipated date when they can expect it to resume.	<input type="checkbox"/>
If you have concerns that damage to a building could pose a safety hazard to employees or customers, have the building professionally inspected.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Secure the building while repairs are being made or if relocation of business activity is necessary.	<input type="checkbox"/>
